

FOREWORD

Since 1975, the Management and Training Services Division of the Commonwealth Secretariat, and its predecessor the Management Development Programme, have been providing extensive assistance to Commonwealth governments confronting the challenge of securing administrative and managerial improvements in the public sector. The Division's analyses of major trends and opportunities for public sector reform are complemented by its tailored consultancy and training packages designed in response to national and regional needs.

The current widespread debate concerning the managerial and structural options which will best fit the public service for the challenges of the next century touches the very centre of the questions concerning the role and responsibilities of the governments of the future.

The structure and processes of the overall public sector, that area of national social and economic life which is directly answerable to government, are significant in two ways. They serve to deliver, or to fail to deliver, the policy objectives of government, and they serve as a marker which government unavoidably sets down concerning accountability and transparency in national affairs, and the legal and constitutional framework for development.

As the range of structural options and accountability relationships utilised within the public sector increases, the complexity and diversity of that sector are growing. Assessing the strategic options for the public sector requires a clear understanding of the managerial alternatives and the actual and potential capacities of the core public service. I believe that this publication, and its companion volumes, is a significant contribution towards that understanding.

The Public Service Country Profile Series has grown out of a larger publication series examining current good practices and new developments in public service management. A pan-Commonwealth expert working group met in Kuala Lumpur in early 1993 to discuss the possible development of a policy guide for senior officials, highlighting the key principles underpinning recent managerial developments within the public service. This ground-breaking workshop developed the framework for The Commonwealth Portfolio, a distillation and analysis of innovations and best practices in public service management from across the Commonwealth.

The Commonwealth Portfolio is being published in loose-leaf format for easy updating, and its 65 entries will cover the major areas of change within public service management.

I am particularly pleased to note that in constructing the Portfolio the expert editors and compilers have been determined to ensure its relevance to the real challenges faced by senior officials and managers. To ensure that the principles it identifies are firmly grounded in real experiences and genuine achievements within the public service, member governments across the Commonwealth were approached to take part in a unique mapping exercise, identifying the actual changes which had been made in some key areas of public service management. That so many governments unhesitatingly agreed is a tribute to the spirit of co-operation and to the strength of professional networks within the public services of Commonwealth countries.

The Public Service Country Profile Series sets out the results of that mapping exercise, country by country, to provide an unprecedented insight into the real managerial and structural changes underway in the public service. In providing some firm ground on which those public servants, both elected and appointed, who are faced with the challenge of public service reform can stand while assessing the options available, the Country Profile Series marks a milestone in the debate concerning the management of the public service. Reality is informing rhetoric at last.
