

Acknowledgements

The Commonwealth Secretariat and UNESCO-IICBA acknowledge with deep gratitude the authors who have contributed to this publication. The breadth of scope and the depth of detail are testaments to their commitment to improving the profession for teachers and education for children.

Gratefully acknowledged also are all the participants of the symposium for their participation, expertise, knowledge and commitment, as are all the staff working behind the scenes at IICBA, the Commonwealth Secretariat and the Ethiopian Red Cross for their hard work, and the staff at the Educational Research Journal and Inter-Agency Network for Education in Emergencies (INEE), for assisting in disseminating information about the symposium.

We are also extremely grateful to the following experts who generously peer-reviewed the papers: Dr John Bailey, Professor Maria Pia Bassi, Bill Bolloten, Richard Bourne, Professor Francis Faller, Dr Pauline Greaves, Dr Halla Björk Holmarsdottir, Geoff Howse, Amir Jones, Gustavo Armando Infante Marquez, Peter Merckx, Dr Paul Miller, Hamis Mugendawala, Dr Rosemary Preston, Daniel Redondo, Dr Lee Rusznyak, Professor Michael Samuel, Emma Sarton, Jael Shisanya, Dennis Sinyolo, Jon Sward, Dr Louis J van der Westhuizen, Dr Winsome Waite, Gabriel Mwema Waithaka and Peter Williams. Thanks are also due to Anne-Marie Philip for assisting in copyediting and proofreading the papers.

The Commonwealth Secretariat expresses deep appreciation to UNESCO-IICBA for generously hosting the Sixth Commonwealth Research Symposium, and for its financial contribution to this publication.

This publication was edited by Jonathan Penson and Akemi Yonemura.